ARRESTED WIDOW; CHARGES MURDER

SUSPECTED BECAUSE SHE PLAYED WEDDING MARCH ON PIANO.

IS RELEASED ON BAIL TODAY

Mrs. Alma Proctor Vaughan Accused of Killing Her Husband—Released Under Bonds.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Kirkville, Mo., Feb. 26.—Mrs. Alma Proctor Vaughan was arrested this morning on a warrant charging her with the murder of her husband, Prof. John T. Vaughan. She was released on $25,000 bonds.

Notwithstanding that Vaughan died in convulsions at that time, she was suspected of poisoning. Ten days later, however, Mrs. Vaughan was heard by Mrs. John R. Kirk, wife of the president of the state normal school, playing a wedding march.

She told her husband this and other things she considered unusual in the behavior of the widow. An investigation followed resulting in the arrest, indictment and arrest.

Prof. Vaughan was instructor in American history at the state normal school here and was once assistant state superintendent of public schools. Dr. Hull, who was arrested in connection with Mrs. Vaughan, who is now out on bail, but who the prosecutor says he re-arrested, came here from Macomb, Ill.

Mrs. Vaughan, when told by the judge she was charged with murder in the first degree, replied with not of her head, but after taking the

VENGEFUL WIDOW IS TRYING TO CONVICT YOUNG GIRL SLAYER

Estelle Stout Exonerated by Coroner's Jury but Mrs. Hornberger Recaps Case.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Feb. 26.—Miss Estelle Stout, a fragile young woman, still in her teens, is now on trial for her life before Judge Baldwin in the criminal courts. She is charged with the murder of Henry Hornberger, a picture-frame collector, whom she shot to death nearly two years ago.

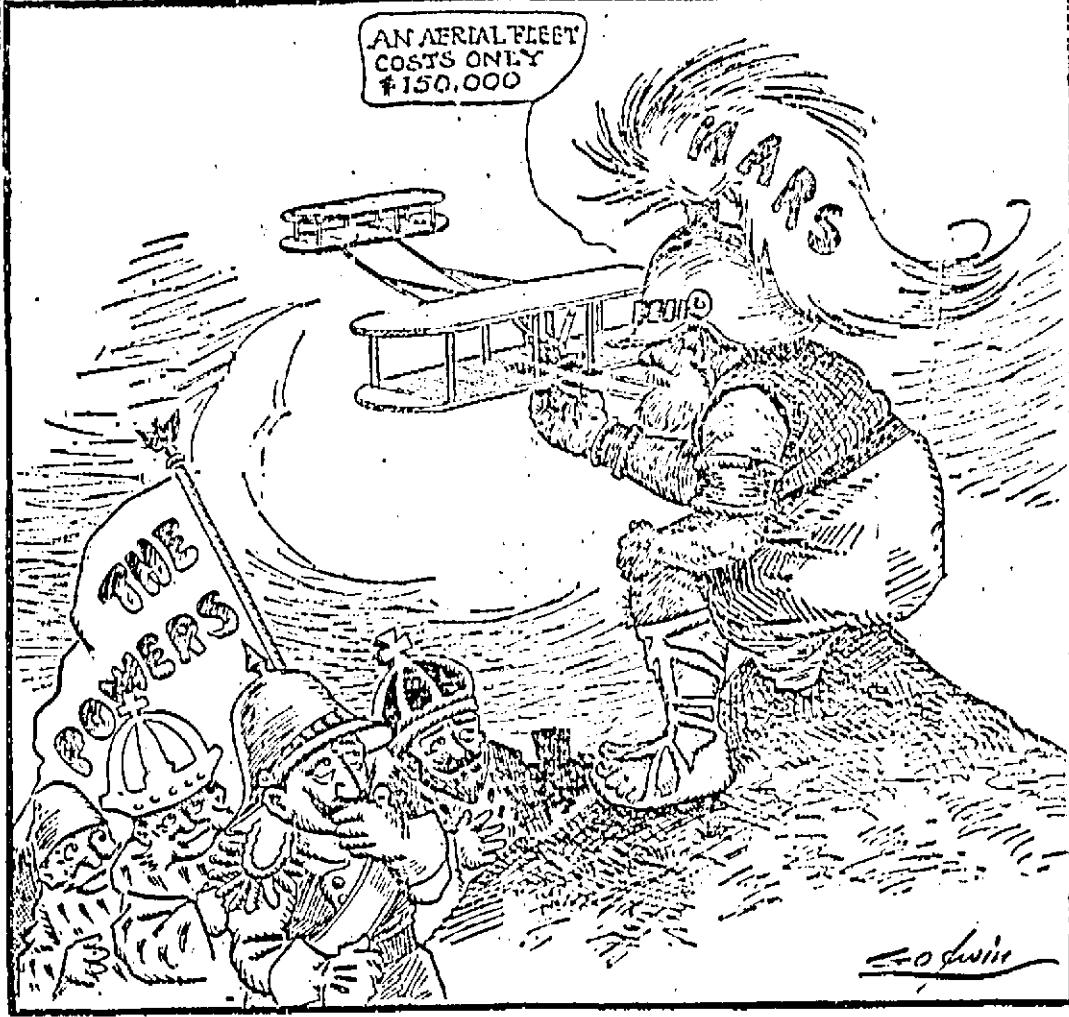

The girl appeared fresh and confident during the opening morning session of the trial, but as the day wore on the strain told on her, and shortly before the conclusion of the afternoon session she burst into tears. She seemed greatly fatigued, but smiled bravely as friends escorted her from the courtroom.

Mrs. Hornberger, widow of the slain man, who has sought punishment of her husband's slayer ever since the shooting, conversed continually in low tones with her sister, Mrs. E. P. Schuster, 847 East Sixty-fifth street, within the enclosure given to state witnesses and opposite that occupied by the girl.

"I can stand it," the girl declared, smiling through her tears.

"Yes, and you'll all stand by her to the end. She was justified in doing what she did," added her brother-in-law, George Chambers, 1522 West Adams street.

"It was not justifiable," exclaimed Mrs. Hornberger. "My husband was

CZAR FERDINAND'S INTERESTING TOUR

Visit of New Ruler of Bulgaria to Russian Capital Is Attracting Attention.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Vienna, Feb. 26.—A slight revival of interest in the Near Eastern question has been occasioned this week by the visit of Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria to Czar Nicholas of Russia. Ferdinand is always a figure when potentates travel, though, as a matter of fact, his little importance should be attached to his visits. For history shows that international relations are never seriously affected by these official courtesies.

Of all the sovereigns of Europe the journeyings of the Bulgarian ruler certainly should attract the least attention, for he is nearly always "on the go." Though comparatively young in years—today, by the way, is his forty-ninth birthday—Ferdinand has probably traveled more extensively than any other European ruler. Some thirty years ago he visited the United States and later made a voyage of exploration into the unknown regions of South America. During the first few years that followed his election as Prince of Bulgaria his frequent journeys to the capitals of Europe involved such expense and kept him away from Sofia so much that for a time his popularity among his own people suffered.

It is but natural that on his present tour of the courts of Europe, the first he has made since Bulgaria succeeded in throwing off the suzerainty of the Porte, Ferdinand should expect to make the Russian court his first objective point, Russia, acting through motives not wholly unselfish, was the first of the powers to recognize Ferdinand as a full-fledged and independent sovereign. In order to induce Russia to recognize his claims as an independent sovereign, Ferdinand offered the recognition of Austria-Hungary by violating solemn promises which he had made to the Vienna government in connection with the conclusion of a treaty of commerce, and also offered the religious sentiment of the greater part of Europe by causing his eldest boy, Prince Boris, to be converted from Catholicism to the Russian church.

NEGRO CONFESSED TO FOUR MURDERS

Black Fiend Secretly Arraigned, Sentenced to Life Imprisonment and Taken to the Kansas Pen.

Grand, Kan., Feb. 26.—Gus Thomas, alias Ed. Young, a negro, confessed to the murder of William Volk, the latter's wife and child, and of another negro. He was arraigned secretly and sentenced to life imprisonment, and was immediately taken to the penitentiary.

HOOSIER STATE'S COMMISSION HERE

Three Men Came to Janesville to Investigate Wisconsin's County System for Carling for Inaction.

Indiana has no county system for caring for the insane and its institutions are overcrowded. Hoosiers are therefore looking to its neighbors for suggestions which will help in solving the problem and the governor appointed a commission of three to visit Wisconsin and learn just how things are done in the Badger State. A. W. Butler, F. H. Gavick, and George E. Edenharter of Indianapolis, the members of this body, arrived in Janesville yesterday and at once repaired to the Rock county asylum where, after a tour of the premises, they subjected Supt. David Barless to a two hour quiz, carefully taking down all his answers in writing. All three men are prominently identified with endeavors for the betterment of the unfortunate. They appeared to be much impressed with the Wisconsin system.

FEDERAL TAX SHOWS COMPANIES' PROFITS

One Per Cent Tax on Net Earnings Shows One Corporation's Profits to Be $1,500,000.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 26.—The payment of the government corporation tax is being made daily to Collector P. R. Bentley and remittances have been received ranging from 42 cents to $15,000. On the basis of one per cent of net earnings the latter tax represents profits last year of $1,500,000. The name of the corporation is not disclosed, strict government rules requiring secrecy on the part of the internal revenue officials.

Collector Bentley is receiving returns as to the annual business done at the rate of three hundred a day. Only two days remain for the making of these returns, Feb. 28th being the time limit. The taxes must be paid by June 1st.

'NEVER AGAIN' FOR WILLIAM J. BRYAN

Old Reliable Runner-Up for Presidency Don't Want and Won't Take Another Nomination.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Feb. 26.—A cable from Valparaiso, Chile, says that William J. Bryan has declared to friends there that he is not a candidate for another nomination to the presidency of the United States. Bryan stated, according to this dispatch, that he "neither desired nor expected to be again a candidate for the presidency."

DOG SAVED FARMER FROM A CRAZY HOG

Herbert Robinson's Faithful Canine Friend Saves Him From Horrible Fate.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milton, Wis., Feb. 26.—Had it not been for the arrival of his faithful dog, Herbert Robinson, a young farmer residing near here, might have been killed by a crazy hog which attacked him today. As it was, the dog fought the infuriated porker while Robinson made his escape. The farmer's clothes were ripped to pieces and one leg badly injured.

MILTON AUDIENCE PLEASD WITH PYRE

Readings and Impersonations by Walton Pyre Immensely Liked.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milton, Feb. 26.—The readings and impersonations given by Mr. Walton Pyre at Milton College Thursday evening were remarkable for the effectiveness with which he presented a multitude of characters and for the lightning-like rapidity of his changes. Mr. Pyre has grown in emotional power and improved in the naturalness of his presentations. He was assisted by Mr. Pleasant Diefenthaler, a plunger of ability and skill. The rendering of Longfellow's "King Robert of Sicily" was made very impressive by a number of background of music. In connection with Mr. Pyre's readings is a recent feature of his work and is extremely effective.

Carver J. C. Anderson made a business trip to Madison Friday and Suburban Granton served his route. President W. C. Deland has been elected secretary of the Wisconsin association of College Presidents and Deans.

W. R. Cleland attended the Milwaukee automobile show. Mrs. Stanley Walker of Colorado is visiting Milton relatives. R. H. Saunders is quite ill with an attack of bronchitis.

CENTENARY OF A CELEBRATED ACTOR

Memorial Services Will Tomorrow Mark 100th Anniversary of Birth of John G. Gilbert.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Feb. 26.—The Actors' society has arranged to hold appropriate memorial services tomorrow to mark the centenary of the birth of John G. Gilbert, who is well remembered by the older generation of playgoers as the foremost American actor in old time parts. During his long and brilliant career Mr. Gilbert impersonated more than one hundred such characters and was associated with many of the famous players of his day.

Born in Boston, Feb. 27, 1810, Mr. Gilbert from his youth was drawn to a theatrical life. At 18 years of age he made his debut at the old Tremont Theater in Boston. After playing minor parts for a year he went to New Orleans and during the next five years he traveled extensively through the South and Southwest. Then he returned to Boston, where he appeared during the next five years in support of Booth, Wallack, Charlotte, Cushman and other leading players.

After a year in New York Mr. Gilbert went to London, where he scored a success at the Princess Theater in an engagement that extended over a year. The next ten years he divided between New York, Philadelphia and Boston. During the latter years of his life he was a leading member of the famous stock company at Wallack's theatre, June 17, 1889.

FORMER BADGER MEN TOOK LEADING PART

Gave Impetus to Glavis' Disclosures Regarding Alaska Coal Lands.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Green Bay, Wis., Feb. 26.—Francis R. Singleton, editor of the Green Bay Advocate, which paper suspended publication three years ago and who was responsible for breaking up a gang of grafters in the city council and had four of them convicted of accepting a bribe, was the man who first intimated to L. R. Glavis that there might be false or fraudulent entries in the Alaskan coal claim.

According to the Post-Intelligencer of Seattle, it was through Peter Charles Sullivan, attorney for Mr. Singleton, that Mr. Glavis's discovery in regard to the Alaskan coal land entries.

MOVE TO NULLIFY MEAT CO.'S CHARTER

Prosecutor to Make Motion to Render National Packing Co.'s Charter Void.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Feb. 26.—A motion to nullify the charter of the National Packing Co., indicted yesterday for conspiracy to raise the price of meat, by the grand jury of Hudson county, New Jersey, will be made next week by Prosecutor Garvon of Jersey City.

PHILADELPHIA MAY GET AMATEUR ATHLETIC MEET

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Feb. 26.—The Intercollegiate association of Amateur Athletes of America convened in annual session at the Waldorf-Astoria today for the election of officers and the transaction of other business pertaining to the affairs of the organization. One of the principal items of business is the selection of the place for holding the association's annual championship meet. It is generally expected that the honor of entertaining the meet will be awarded to the University of Pennsylvania.

PINCHOT ON STAND BRANDS BALLINGER AS PEOPLE'S ENEMY

Dismissed Official Accuses Secretary of Being Enemy to Conservation—Says Glavis Told the Truth.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—Gifford Pinchot went on the stand this afternoon and before beginning his testimony before the investigation committee read a lengthy statement outlining what he expects to tell the committee. In substance he declares Ballinger an enemy to conservation and that he made deceptive statements to the President, and that Glavis told the truth and for doing so was summarily dismissed, and that in his (Pinchot's) opinion Ballinger is unfaithful both to the people and to the President.

BOWLING TOURNEY OPENS IN DETROIT

Tenth Annual Tournament of American Congress Will Be in Progress for Two Weeks.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Year	Place	Individuals	Total
1901	Chicago	115	$1,692
1902	Buffalo	219	2,490
1903	Indianapolis	217	4,137
1904	Cleveland	452	6,395
1905	Milwaukee	812	11,610
1906	Louisville	857	12,418
1907	St. Louis	1,026	13,857
1908	Cincinnati	1,469	20,400
1909	Pittsburg	1,562	21,530
1910	Detroit	1,892	25,000

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 26.—With several thousand of the best bowlers of the country entered, the tenth annual tournament of the American Bowling Congress was formally opened at the Wayne gardens today, and will continue for two weeks. The entry list breaks all records for the A. B. C. tournaments. Not only have the previous entry lists in the different classes been exceeded, but the prize money offered in the various events is larger than at any previous tournament held by the organization.

The entries for the fifteen teams aggregate 400, which is considerably in excess of the number entered at Pittsburg last year. Entries in two men teams and in the individual class exceed the number which participated in these classes at Pittsburg. Not only is this section of the country represented by many devotees of the game, but from the East, the South and the far West hundreds of temple knights have come to compete for the $25,000 offered in prize money. Almost every city of importance throughout the country will have its representatives on the alleys during the next two weeks. A number of clubs, including Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, Toledo, Milwaukee, St. Louis and Buffalo, have spent nights, and practically all have made both individual and team entries.

Twenty-four alleys have been constructed in the Wayne gardens. Six of these are on the first floor and are to be used for practice and match games. During the two weeks of the tournament there will be no let-up in the competitions. The roll of the balls and the crash of the pins will be heard daily, Sundays included, from 8 a. m. until 10 p. m. The long schedule is necessary because of the unusually large number of entries. Boomers for the next convention are already much in evidence. The most active are the delegates from Buffalo and St. Louis. Columbus is waging a quiet campaign to secure the tournament two years hence.

Though there is considerable room the business to be transacted, there promises to be very little doing in the way of politics at this year's congress. There is no one mentioned for president, except "Bob" Bryson, the incumbent, and he will probably be reelected. Secretary Al Laundry and Treasurer Frank Padeloup are also slated to succeed themselves.

Following the formal opening of the tournament the local bowlers are to have possession of the alleys to-night and tomorrow. Next week will be devoted to the smaller delegations until Saturday, when the Chicago clubs will roll in. Monday, March 7, will be Louisville and Cincinnati night. Tuesday will be devoted to St. Paul and Minneapolis, and on Thursday a score or more of clubs from Milwaukee and Madison will celebrate Wisconsin night. Big delegations from Chicago and St. Louis will hold the boards during the remainder of the week. The Easterners will have their innings during the second and concluding week of the tournament, beginning Sunday, March 13, when Buffalo's big contingent will make its appearance on the alleys. Other delegations scheduled to compete during the week will include those from Greater New York, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Montreal, Winnipeg, Seattle and San Francisco.

COMING WEEK IS TO BE EVENTFUL

DEER AND FORESTRY PROBES AND TAFT RAILROAD BILL

CENTENARY OF LEO XIII

Indianapolis Convention of Educators—Heike and Heinze Prosecutions—Other Happenings Fore-shadowed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—The progress of the new inquiry, the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation, the railroad bill through Congress unamended, the situation in Nicaragua, and the proceedings of the British parliament—these are among the subjects that promise to continue as staple topics of news and discussion during the week. The President is scheduled for one public address during the week, to be delivered Monday night at a dinner of the University Club in this city.

Customs Frauds Trial

Charles H. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining Company and alleged to be "the man higher up" in the customs duties frauds, will be placed on trial in New York on indictments charging him with conspiracy to defraud the Government by underweighing imports of sugar. Actions Against Copper King

P. Augustus Heinze, the copper king and financier, is to be placed on trial in New York on the two indictments still pending against him for alleged misapplication of funds of the Merchants National Bank. National Educators Meet

Many of the leading educators of the country will gather in Indianapolis for the annual convention of the department of superintendence of the National Educational association. Senator Beveridge and other speakers of national reputation have promised to address the meeting.

A Day Apart for Catholics

The Roman Catholic church throughout the world will unite Wednesday in celebrating the centenary of the birth of the late Pope Leo XIII. Especially notable will be the commemoration in Rome, in which the Pope, the cardinals and many eminent prelates of the church from all parts of the world will participate.

Trade War at an End

The trade war between Canada and Germany which has been on since Canada gave Great Britain a preference in 1897 and which led Canada to impose a surtax of 33 1/3 per cent against German goods in 1908 will come to a definite end Tuesday, when the provisional trade agreement recently concluded by Canada and Germany will come into effect. The new arrangement is a far-reaching one and is expected to lead to a great extension of trade between the two countries.

WILL BE FIRST OF THE ALL-BIG-GUNS

Battleship "South Carolina" Will Become Part of Strength of U. S. Navy Next Week.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Philadelphia, Feb. 25.—The "South Carolina," one of the first of the all big gun battleships, will become a part of the active strength of the United States Navy at the League Island navy yard next week, when she will be formally placed in commission, with Captain Augustus Fiesher as her first commander. The "South Carolina" is a sister ship of the Michigan, which was recently placed in commission here. The most distinguishing feature of these two giant fighting machines are their four great turrets, out of each of which protrudes a pair of 12-inch guns of the latest and most powerful type. It is expected that the "South Carolina," soon after going into commission, will be ordered to Charleston to receive the magnificent silver service to be presented to her by the State whose name she bears.

CUBS AND SOX OFF FOR TRAINING CAMP

Americans Will Get Into Shape in Golden State—Nationals Go To New Orleans.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Feb. 26.—The players of both the local clubs of the National and American leagues left Chicago today for their spring training camps. California is again the objective point of the Americans, who left the city in a special train, accompanied by numerous club officials, newspaper men and others. The National league players go direct to West Baden, Ind., where they will stay until next Thursday and then leave for New Orleans.

MEDICAL EDUCATION MEETING AT CHICAGO

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Feb. 26.—Arrangements have been concluded for the big medical education convention to be held in this city during the early part of next week under the auspices of the American Medical association. The speakers at the convention will include President William H. Welch of the association, President Shurman of Cornell University, President Northrop of the University of Minnesota, Elmer Ellsworth Brown, United States Commissioner of Education, and a number of other educators and medical men of national reputation.

FOND DU LAC WOULD NAME SPENSELEY'S SUCCESSOR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Fond du Lac, Wis., Feb. 26.—Henry S. Miller is being mentioned as the successor to Calvert Spenseley, a member of the state fish commission, who has resigned.

HEARING HAS BEEN SET FOR MARCH 21

Notice Received That Case of City of Janesville vs. New Gas Light Co. Will Be Heard Then.

City Attorney H. L. Maxfield this morning received a formal communication from the secretary of the state railway commission announcing that the case of the city of Janesville against the New Gas Light company has been set for hearing on Monday, March 21, at 10 a. m.

The suit was started by Mr. Maxfield on instructions from the common council on the grounds that the Gas company here charged an excessive rate for their product. The preliminary hearing of the case was held some time ago in connection with that brought by the city against the Janesville Water company and was continued to some future date.

At the hearing on March 1, the question of the valuation of the property of the company in Janesville will be heard, this not having been decided at the previous hearing, the report of the engineers not having been ready at that time.

It is probable that after taking up the matter of the valuation, a date sometime in the future will be set for a hearing on the direct complaint of excessive rates.

CHARGED WITH SALE OF IMPURE LINSEED

G. Tobias Hanson, Orfordville Hardware Dealer, Appeared in Municipal Court This Morning.

On a complaint preferred by W. F. Scott of the state dairy and pure food commission, G. Tobias Hanson of the Orfordville hardware firm of Hanson & Son was haled before Judge Fildes in municipal court this morning to answer to a charge of selling boiled linseed oil containing mineral ingredients, in violation of Chap. 532 of the laws of 1905. Mr. Hanson stated that he had purchased the commodity from a reliable firm and had been guilty of any suspicion that it was not pure, as represented. He asked permission to have the examination set without any plea and the case was continued on that basis until March 7.

Twin Girls: Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Granger are rejoicing over the arrival of a pair of twin baby girls at the Mercy hospital yesterday.

EDGERTON PREPARES TO FIGHT SALOONS

Tobacco City Is to Vote on the Saloon Question This Spring—Union Meeting Sunday Night.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Edgerton, Wis., Feb. 26.—That the crusade against saloon licenses in Edgerton at the coming spring election will be a warm one goes without saying. The two local pastors, Rev. G. K. Macdonald and Rev. H. W. Roberts, of the M. E. and Congregational churches have the fight in hand and the campaign promises to be interesting. Rev. Roberts visited and interviewed each of the ten saloon-keepers during the week and the information collected will be made known at a union temperance meeting to be held Sunday evening at the Congregational church. A great surprise is expected. William Barrett was in Milwaukee on Thursday and Friday attending the auto show.

Had Finger Smashed: While watching the tent during a bowling match at the bowling alleys Thursday evening Dr. G. B. Thayer had the middle finger of the left hand badly smashed in collision with a return ball.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

The man who waits for orders
Is the man who holds a job.
You seldom see him climbing
Very much above the mob;
He's the man who sits and wonders
Why it is his brothers rise,
And he, misers much of glory
Just because he never tries.

The man who waits for orders
Seldom gets a raise in pay,
And he never wins distinction,
Though he works from day to day;
Though he never makes a failure,
He will never be a leader
Through the world's great wilderness.

—Detroit Free Press.

This sentiment is true to life in every line and defines the difference between men who wait for orders, and men who are so resourceful that they anticipate instructions and are always busy.

The man is called a faithful worker, who does what he is told to do, and if he performs his task well there is no cause for complaint, but if ambition is satisfied with simply obeying orders, he will grow gray behind the same counter, or at the same bench, for advancement seldom comes to this class of men.

The man who is content to be a machine, never gets away from machine environment and soon becomes a part of the mechanical outfit. He does the same thing, day after day, in the same way, until every movement is automatic, he starts on time and stops just as promptly and soon gains recognition as a perfect piece of mechanism.

The tendency of the age is to make this class of men and organized labor is not the only inducement at work in this direction. The government, in establishing an eight hour day, and through other methods, has done more to destroy ambition and encourage men to become machines, than all other agencies combined.

The government pay roll, in all departments, enrolls about 370,000 employees and 20,000 of this number work in Washington. This includes the navy yard force, as well as the clerks and printers. Of the latter there are some 3,000.

The Washington clerk is a law unto himself. He shows up at nine in the morning and retires at 4 in the afternoon, filling every requirement without perspiring or overheating his anatomy.

Should ambition prompt him to appear on the scene at 8 o'clock and work until six, the whole department would be demoralized, for they don't do things that way. In fact there is no incentive for ambition in a government clerk, and the knowledge he absorbs isn't worth a "hoot" in business or any other calling.

President Roosevelt decided that 8 hours was long enough to work at any kind of business, and positively wrong for a man to work more than that length of time for the government. So the 8 hour law passed and the federal employee became a victim.

One of the vicious features of this law is that no government contractor is permitted to work his men more than 8 hours. The Hayes brothers are building a government dam out in Dakota and employing two or three hundred men of half a dozen nationalities.

"These men are willing and anxious to put in good long days and earn good wages, but the law says 'Not 8 hours is the limit.' That's a fine law. It not only destroys ambition, but it works an injustice to both employer and employee. It also establishes a precedent for organized labor, making demands still more unreasonable."

The printers of Denver worked last year on a 7 hour schedule, and the first of January struck for a 6 hour work day to date back to months, the extra hour to be paid for at time and a half.

The employers yielded everything but the overtime and the men walked out. For two days the city was without a paper but finally a compromise was effected.

Two or three years ago the letter carriers of this same western city decided that they wanted Saturday afternoons for a holiday, so they worked 8 1/2 hours through the week, and Saturday noon quit the job and went to a ball game.

Patrons complained to no purpose, for the men had worked full time, but finally an inspector was sent out from Washington to fix the matter up. With that kind of an object lesson organized labor ought to be able to do a full day's work before dinner.

Many people are in positions where the strict observance of orders without question is recognized as the highest order of service. The soldier is content to go through life at $13 per month, doing exactly what he is ordered to do, and nothing more at his peril.

An Irish regiment on parole in New York, just before sailing for Cuba, approached the station building on Broadway. Michael Sweeney was color-bearer for his company, and as he rounded the treacherous corner the wind caught the flag and carried Michael halfway across the street, demoralizing the ranks and creating confusion.

Suddenly an order came back from the commander, "Michael Sweeney, take the ship," and Mike, struggling with the banner shouted back, "To hell with you ship. Ol' have a ship of me own." But that was the end of Michael as a soldier.

The careful observance of orders is necessary in every calling, but a world of opportunities are presented for working outside of orders, and the men who recognize and grasp these opportunities are the men slated for advancement.

Some years ago a janitor, in the employ of a small corporation, was asked to wash a buggy for the manager. "I'll not reply was, 'I wasn't hired to wash buggies.'"

That's the disposition which organized labor develops and encourages. If a man finds a board missing a carpenter must be sent for, regardless of loss to the employer.

The captain of industry, or the men who get anywhere near the front never come from this class of employees.

The intelligent employee is open to suggestion. The longer he lives the more he discovers that he has much to learn concerning the development of his own business and this is especially true in this age of evolution when old methods, like old machinery, are constantly being discarded.

There was a time, and not so long ago, when the farmer sowed his seed, and followed the old routine of his father on the farm, but not so today. The up-to-date farmer is now a scientific and intelligent tiller of the soil, as well as a scientific dairyman.

He has been willing to take lessons from the boys of the agricultural college, and results are everywhere apparent, for haphazard methods are abandoned.

In the old days the merchant was content to hang out his sign and wait for business, and a fragment of this class of men still exist, but they are so far in the rear that they attract but little attention.

The story was told recently of one of these back numbers, in an inland city, who boasted that during his long career in business he had never spent a dollar in advertising.

One morning the proprietor of a local paper went into the store and said, "John, I want a dollar." "You want a dollar?" was the astonished reply. "What do you want to do with it?"

"I want to show you an ad," said his friend, "and if you don't get results I'll refund the money." He went away with the dollar and that evening the following notice appeared in the paper:

"TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.
This is to certify that I paid one dollar for this notice. It is the first dollar I ever spent for advertising and if I don't get results I will never spend another."
(Signed)
"JOHN SMITH."

The next morning people commenced to drop in and buy goods while they joked him about his ad. They told him he ought to be encouraged, and before night he figured that he was $40 ahead.

This man was helped by the suggestion of a friend, but many an employer has benefited by the timely suggestion of an interested employee where practical knowledge made him a good adviser. The resourceful man is always in demand, and sooner or later he forsakes the ranks of employee to become an employer. Some one said, not long ago:

"That man is strong who does the things
Made his by place and circumstance,"

Who falters not nor questions asks
Nor leaves results to time or chance—
Who turns from finished things to new

And does the work he's told to do,
"Yet stranger is this other man,
(However well may serve the one),
Who meets a problem with a plan
And does the thing that must be done—
With firmer grasp and wider view,
Does that he sets himself to do."

An Expert.
Prim Aunt—"My dear nephew, were you who in your choice of a wife? Can she cook? Can she make good stew?"
Nephew—"She can make a stew all right. The only trouble is that she always puts me in it."

One more week is softly closing, and more week of toil and care; and I'm sitting, gently dozing, in my good old rocking chair, thinking of the week behind me, and the thoughts that through me creep, with their little prods remind me that I'm pretty small and cheap. I've been busy, mean and cranky, and my heart is full of guile; I denied the kid of "Thankee" when he hoped to earn a smile; I've been finding fault and snarling at my good friend, sitting there; if she wasn't just a darling, she would hit me with a chair. I've been growling over my labors, just as though no others toiled; I've been wrangling with my neighbors till they think my brain is spoiled. All my sins are small and futile, all within the law, I vow; but they loom up large and brutal, as I rake them over now. And I licked some fellow mortal, so that cops would drag me over to the prison's gloomy portal, I'd respect myself the more; but that sort of crime's above me, it's too noble, clean and sleek; I have nagged at those who love me, and I need a good swift kick.

SOLID FACTS ABOUT SEWING MACHINES

DIVESTED of all "flowery" and "book" language—eliminating all exaggerations, and speaking straight from the shoulder—the fact remains, that the "Eldredge," in its twenty-eight years of existence, has fairly won its present title of "The Machine of Merit." Machines have come and gone—frank models, with their bold if indefinite claims of superiority, have been placed before the public, schemes to make quick sales, etc., have been tried and they all end where they began.

Through it all the "Eldredge" has steadily forged ahead until it now occupies a position well in the front ranks and is a RECOGNIZED LEADER of high class, dependable machines throughout the country. Just think of it, OVER ONE MILLION of "Eldredge" machines in active use today, and NOT A DISSATISFIED OWNER in the lot. Can you afford to ignore the living, breathing testimony of this army of "Eldredge" users when making your selection of a sewing machine?

The materials in the construction of the "Eldredge" from the top of its nickel plated, steel capped needle bar down to its polished casters are the very best hard cash can purchase. They are selected and utilized with a view of best meeting the service demanded of them. A few features are: Disc Tension with AUTOMATIC Release, Cam Driven, Positive Takeup, Steel Forged, Double Width, Four Motion Positive Feed, Steel Capped Needle Bar, Loose Pulley Device for winding bobbin. (This is an exclusive "Eldredge" feature) Automatic Bobbin Winder, Automatic Stitch Regulator and Nickel Steel Face Plate.

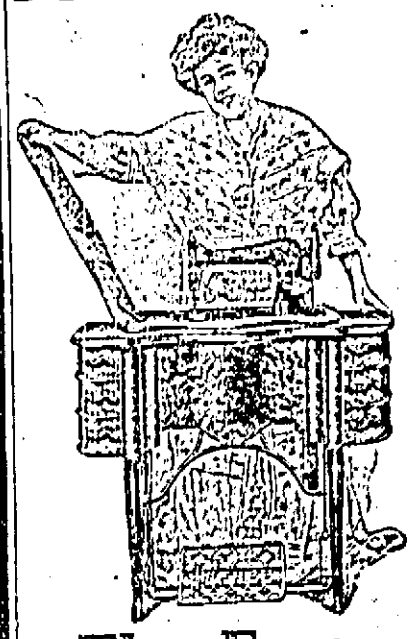

The Woodwork throughout is selected kiln dried, quarter-sawn Oak. It is given our celebrated hand rubbed, mirror finish, a finish that cannot be surpassed and which compares favorably with the highest grades of modern furniture. The Ball Bearing Stand with its scientific construction, is another feature deserving special mention because it lightens the labor of the operator to a wonderful degree. It is fitted with an Automatic Belt Replacer which automatically rebelts both wheels when the sewing head is raised to position.

The "Eldredge" Steel Foot Attachment is very complete consisting as it does of the following: Ruffler, Tucker, Binder, Braider, Four Hemmers of varying widths, Quilter, Feller, Shirring Slide, Cloth Guide, Twelve Assorted Needles, Six Bobbins, Filled Oil Can, Two Screw Drivers and Profusely Illustrated Book of Directions. The "Eldredge" machine combines every late improvement found in a $50.00 to $60.00 machine, but it does not cost nearly as much.

The "Eldredge" machine is warranted for ten years by the National Sewing Machine Company, one of the strongest companies in the world. Read the guarantee in this ad and then ask yourself if there is a better proposition anywhere.

Is It Worth While?

Last night's Gazette carried quite a number of announcements from the merchants and to those who are "habitual" readers of the display ads it would be interesting to note the offers that were made: A $1.00 belt buckle given free with each purchase at Dime Bros. A beautiful art calendar free with every purchase at Wetmore's Big Beauty Sale. 25c worth of anything in the store free with every purchase of a 25c can of Buxton's Tooth Powder at Smith's. An Evening Baking Pan given free with every purchase of 25c or over at the Union Pacific Tea Co. In addition there were many talks on the season's coming styles and there were fully a hundred opportunities to save money. If a woman needed merchandise and she would patronize the advertisers she would realize that the savings would pay her well for reading the ads.

SWITCHMAN MET SUDDEN DEATH AT NOON TODAY

PAUL JERSUEL OF ROCKFORD INSTANTLY KILLED AT 12:30.
FELL FROM TOP OF A CAR

Whole Left Side Crushed in—Had Worked as Switchman But Four Days When Accident Happened.

Before the eyes of scores of passengers who were waiting for trains, Paul Jersuel of Rockford, aged twenty-four, a switchman employed by the C. M. & St. Paul Ry., was killed from the top of a box car and instantly killed about half past twelve today. He struck on a heavy steel rail and his whole left side was crushed in.

The accident happened just south of the Academy street crossing. Jersuel was riding on the top of the last of a short string of cars which were being pushed by switch engine 1044, when, according to the story of those who were working with him, the rail was pulled and the switchman, losing his balance, fell from the car.

Although he was lying near the rails when picked up, the car, which was at a standstill, had not passed over his body and except for bruises on his left side, his body was unmarked. Medical assistance was immediately summoned but upon the arrival of Drs. St. John, Pomeroy and Nuzum, it was seen that Jersuel was beyond human aid and his body was conveyed to Kimball's undertaking store in Russell's ambulance.

Jersuel, or Jersol, as his name was sometimes spelled, had been switching for the St. Paul but four days. At the time of his death, he was working with Foreman William Taylor who stated that during the short time, Jersuel had worked for the company, he had won the esteem of all who knew him. So far as can be learned, Jersuel has one brother in Rockford and efforts are being made this afternoon to locate him.

Jersuel's death was the result of an accident, pure and simple. It is thought that the slippery condition of the cars, resulting from the sleet, was responsible for his fall.

OLD HOSE BURST AT THE FRIDAY FIRE

Department Worked from Nine-Thirty Until Five in the Afternoon.

In all there were over five thousand feet of hose laid at the fire on Friday which destroyed the Burns & Matten Mill and the members of the department worked from nine-thirty in the morning when the flames started, until after five in the afternoon, when the danger was all over. During the fire a large amount of the old hose used burst or became worthless by becoming "farted." None of the new hose burst, although some four hundred and fifty feet of the last purchase of the council was put into use. The delay in starting the fire engine was due to the precaution of the chief, who feared to over-tax the hose.

WILL MAKE REPAIRS ON ROOF OF LIBRARY

Library Board Took Action On Matter at Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon.

At a recent meeting of the common council the building committee was delegated to make arrangements for repairs on the public library roof. It was found on investigation, however, that this work was properly within the province of the library board. The latter organization has taken up the matter and at a meeting last evening decided to let the contract to the J. P. Ege Roofing company of Oshkosh for a pitch and gravel roof which will cost from $200 to $250, depending upon the exact number of square feet. The roof originally covered upon would have cost from $225 to $285. The same company put the roofs on the Wisconsin Telephone company and Michael's brick buildings, and guarantee its work for ten years. The entire upper surface of the library will be re-covered.

COLUMBUS TEAM WAS SWAMPED BY LOCALS

In Contest for Championship at High School, Visiting Basketball Team Could Do Nothing.

The Columbus high school basketball team, conquerors of the Carroll and Sacred Heart college teams, and the only contender of the Janesville high school five for the championship of the southwestern district of Wisconsin, relinquished its claim to the title last night to Janesville by a score of 36 to 7.

The Columbus team was a little too fast for them. At the beginning of the contest the playing was very speedy and it was seven minutes before Janesville was able to score. By the middle of the half, the score was still close, and the routers were cranked with excitement. Then the Janesville quintet pulled away from their opponents, and by the end of the half had made 17 points to one lonely little mark on the slate for Columbus.

Columbus evidently expected that the Hoover City bunch would "easy pickings" and put its substitutes into the game at the start. The locals, however, showed their superiority and the substitutes were taken out and the regular men put in their places. Murphy made a spectacular play in the first half, ending the half on an overhead throw while two Columbus men were attempting to block him. Throughout the rest of the game, the Janesville team outplayed their adversaries and at the end of the second half had piled up nineteen points to six for Columbus. Hemmings was taken out in the middle of the last half, Wilkinson playing center and McDonald was put in at the basket position. Korst in throwing an attempted to introduce symphonies in his playing and fell over on his back. Phew! from the crowd.

The crowd, swelling the game last evening was the largest at any game ever held in the gymnasium. The spectators expressed their enthusiasm loudly and made the place fairly ring with their yells. After the game they gathered around and had a monster bonfire in front of the school building in celebration of the victory. As a finishing touch they paraded the streets giving the high school cheers.

There was justification for their jubilation, for with the victory of last night the team has secured admittance into the state interscholastic basketball meet at Madison and will meet there the best basketball players in the state. The men played an excellent game, although in the opinion of some of those present they did not show as much speed as they can put forth, possibly due to the fact that they realized that they would win the game and pushing and shoving were splendidly performed. In guarding their men, Green and Wilkinson started.

The team lineups were:

Field Goals—Murphy, 1; Korst, 5; Hemmings, 2; Wilkinson, 2; Franklin, 1; E. Schultz, 1. Free Throws—Murphy, 2; T. Schultz, 2. Gifts—Janesville, 1; Columbus, 1. Referee—Kadish of Madison.

Timekeepers—Kanderson for Janesville; M. Klatt, for Columbus. Scores—Janesville for Janesville; Newman, for Columbus. Time of halves—20 minutes.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS PLAN BIG CAMPFIRE

Arrangements are being completed and invitations have been sent to every camp in this state and northern Illinois to attend. At least 250 guests are expected to be present, among them being the drum and bugle corps from the Rockford camp. An elaborate banquet will be provided and following it a program will be given that will surpass any previous one ever given here.

JANESVILLE BASKETBALL CONTESTS PLAYED TODAY
"B" Juniors and "A" Juniors Played Games in Their Schedules This Morning.

In the schedule of the basketball league of the "A" Juniors the "Reds" defeated the "Maroons," 6 to 1, and the "Blues" were victorious over the "Oranges" team by a score of 6 to 0. Field baskets were thrown by Beard, 2; Amersbach, 1; Beard, 1; Sheldon, 1; and Richards, 1. Free throws, Craig, 1.

Some exciting contests were played in the "B" Junior league, Dalton winning from Sayles by the close score of 8 to 7. The five captained by Alwood beat Hemmings' quintet, 7 to 2. Field baskets: Herman, 2; Sugar, 1; Alwood, 2; Jeffers, 1; McGinley, 1. Free throws: Dalton, 2; Myhr, 2; Sayles, 2; Mohr, 1; Jeffers, 1; Hemmings, 1.

RULES THAT ARE TO GOVERN STATE MEET

Janesville Is Admitted to Be Strong Contender for Place in Basketball Tournament.

From present indications, Janesville, Jefferson and Watkesia high schools in the southern section, Blain high school of Superior in the northern, Eau Claire, Sparta and Argonne in the western look to be the strongest contenders for places in the Sixth Annual High School Basketball Tournament to be held under the auspices of the Lawrence College Athletic Association in Appleton on March 21 and April 1 and 2.

The board of managers are now attempting to work out a new schedule for the meet, one that will be also fairly fair to each team.

Eight teams will be admitted to the tournament and they are chosen on their records for the season, being the strongest teams in the various parts of the state, all coming to the tournament as possible winners of the championship.

In the past a team has not been out of the running for the championship until it has lost two games and become some of the teams are always stronger than others, on more than one occasion a weaker team has been able to go to the finals because it met only weak teams, while a fairly strong team has gone down by meeting only the strong team.

It is to get around this that Coach Catlin is trying to arrange a new schedule and also to arrange it that it will not be a contest of endurance but of skill. It is now proposed to hold only seven or instead of fourteen games during the tournament.

Under the proposed new schedule the managers of the eight teams will meet in Appleton Wednesday, March 23, and cast lots to see what teams will meet on the opening day. The four teams losing will be out of the tournament and the four winners will again cast lots to see which will meet on Friday in the semifinals. Saturday night the two winners of the Friday games will play for the state championship.

OBITUARY.

Harry Putnam.
Harry Putnam, a well known resident of this city and a veteran of the civil war, passed away today about noon at his home, 1202 Rayne street, after an illness of two weeks duration of heart trouble caused by excessive use of tobacco. Mr. Putnam was born in Chelsea, Mass., February 22, 1847. For many years he was engaged in the tobacco business and he came to Janesville in 1895. He served in the Union army during the civil war in the First Massachusetts cavalry. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Holmes, who lives in New Hampshire, and the members of his immediate family, his wife, a son, Parker, of this city; two daughters, Cora, of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Charlotte Field of this city. Notice of the time of the funeral will be given later.

George Airlie.
Funeral services for the late George Airlie were held this afternoon at two o'clock from the home, 571 Washington street, conducted by the Rev. J. W. Lauchlin. The services were attended by many relatives and friends of the deceased. Pallbearers were the four brothers: Walter, Adam, Will and Robert Airlie, and John and M. J. Dornady. The remains were laid to rest in Oak Hill.

John Doran.
John Doran, aged eighty-five years, died this morning at five o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. McCann, on South High street. Besides Mrs. McCann he is survived by another daughter, Mrs. D. E. McCarthy of the town of Porter. The funeral will be held Monday morning at nine o'clock from St. Mary's church. Burial in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Thomas Joyce.
This morning at St. Patrick's church at nine o'clock occurred the funeral of the late Thomas C. Joyce. The services were attended by a large family circle and many friends of the deceased. The many beautiful floral tokens bespoke the esteem in which he was held. The pallbearers—nephews of the deceased—were: Thomas Joyce, John O'Malley, Martin Joyce, Peter Kelley, John Cronin, and Frank Kelley. The remains were placed at rest in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

CHIC TRIBUN OF MALINE.
Among the favored between-seasons hats now seen in Paris are chic turbans, built of maline in pale colors, beautifully capped and trimmed around the huge crown with a band of black velvet ribbon. Covering the joining of this on left side is a huge jet cabochon and bunch of black aggrates.

These turbans are delightfully chic and a good milliner should be able to copy the style from our sketch.

BROADHEAD.

Broadhead, Feb. 25.—Messrs. Chas. Cox and Chas. Richter were Milwaukee visitors on Friday.

Miss Belle Flood returned Friday to Milwaukee to resume her studies in Brower college.

Miss Josephine Fitzgerald went Friday afternoon to Janesville to spend Saturday with her mother.

Attorney Burr Sprague returned Friday noon from a trip to Ohio.

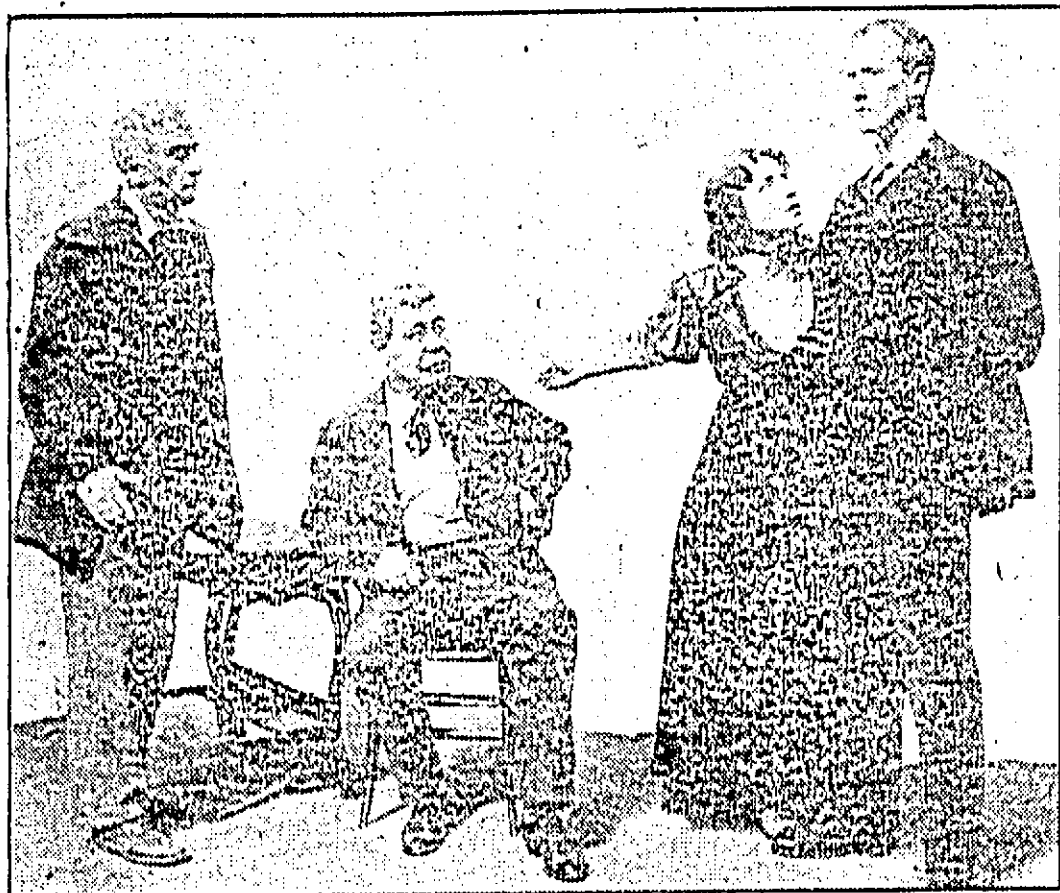

Rev. Hinsdale of Jmda was the guest of Broadhead friends on Friday.

Miss Nellie Chambers returned Friday from a visit of some days with Monroe relatives.

Miss Sadie Gardner, who is attending the Monroe Business Institute, came home Friday afternoon to spend Saturday with her parents.

Mrs. Kate A. Doolittle is expected home from Canon City, Colorado tomorrow, where she has been for the past fourteen months with her daughter, Mrs. L. D. Beckwith and family.

The "Dollar Tea" held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eld. Blair on Friday of the trusts, expect to find him an easy mark, but the simple old planter proves himself more than a match for them in diplomacy and fighting. He falls into the hands of blind faith, a young newspaper correspondent, whom he makes his private secretary and who guides him safely over the allipony piers. Langdon's daughter and the secretary form a mutual attachment and this becomes the principal love interest of the play. The old senator, himself, becomes smitten with a widow, his oldest daughter and a congressman from her native state—also become victims of the tender passion and the infection even spreads

A goodly number were present and a fine "tea" was served. Twenty-five members of the Aid society turned in the dollar they had earned and told how it was done in verse. It was most interesting.

Minley Dedrick is home from Monrovia to spend Saturday.

The different wedding anniversaries are as follows: First, paper; fifth, wood; tenth, tin; fifteenth, crystal; twentieth, china; twenty-fifth, silver; thirtieth, steel; thirty-fifth, diamond. The sixtieth is usually celebrated as the diamond wedding, as it falls to the lot of very few to live together for three-quarters of a century.

Washington, D. C.—Serious charges, backed by a mass of sworn testimony, against Charles P. Neff, commissioner of labor, are today in the hands of Secretary Nagel, of the department of commerce and labor, and it is not unlikely that the matter may lead to another congressional investigation.

Gross incompetency is the general charge made against Mr. Neill, and the more specific allegation is that his bureau has squandered appropriations aggregating $300,000 in collecting a great amount of data pertaining to certain investigations which he has not been authorized to conduct, which data, it is further alleged, he has refused to use and has been either altered or destroyed because it did not conform to his preconceived notion of

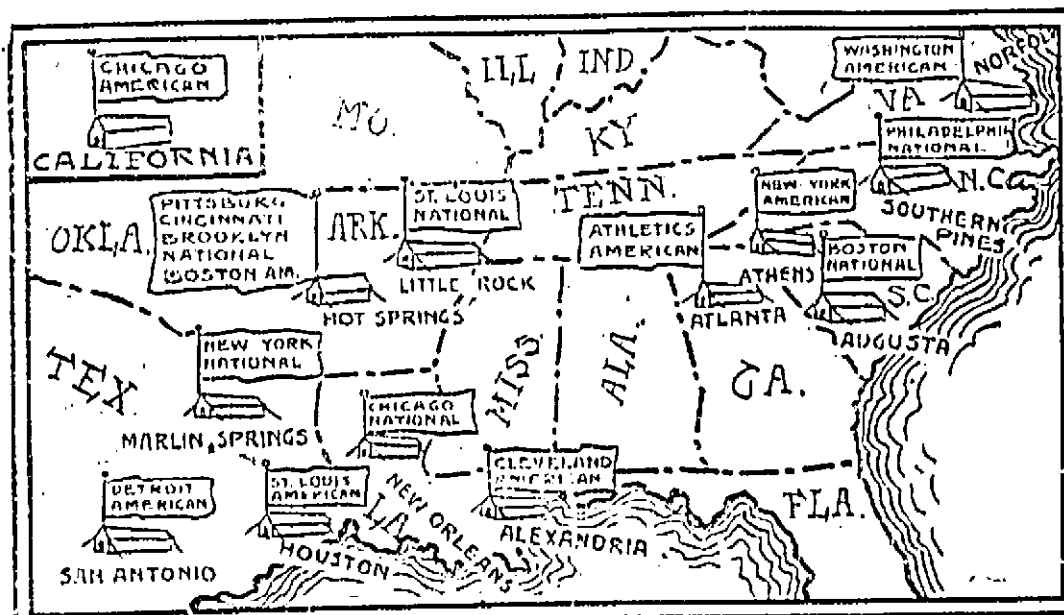

For a long time there has been talk in Washington of the alleged inefficiency of the commissioner of labor and his failure to make reports upon the work and investigations which his bureau has been directed to undertake.

The charges pending with Secretary Nagel against Mr. Nagel were brought last September by Major Thomas H. C. Campbell, a special agent of the labor bureau, charged in making important investigations. The secretary appointed Assistant Secretary Benjamin J. Cable and Charles Carl, the solicitor of the department, to hear the evidence and make a report. Their report is now in the possession of Secretary Nagel.

The entire matter grows out of an elaborate speech which Senator Dyer, of Indiana made in the senate on January, 1907, upon woman and child labor. He charged that little children by the thousands were being murdered every year by work in mills and factories. The cotton mills of New England and the south, the silk mills of New Jersey, the glass, factories of Pennsylvania and the clothing, sweat shops of New York and Chicago were specialized in the places where children were suffering these hardships.

As a result of Mr. Heyerdick's speech congress appropriated $150,000 and directed the bureau of labor to make an investigation of the condition of woman and child labor. Later this amount was found to be insufficient and another $150,000 appropriation was made. That was three years ago and nothing in the way of a report has ever been forthcoming from the bureau.

Now comes the charge that the investigation made did not develop the facts which it was started out to prove, and did not bear out the preconceived hypothesis of Commissioner Neill, and that in consequence much of the data for which the $200,000 was expended has been cast aside as useless, while a further effort is being made to prepare something which will show what the commissioner wanted.

HERPICIDE
One of the Essentials

On your winter vacation you will most certainly want a bottle of Herpicide. This is doubly true if your trip contemplates a visit to a warmer climate. It is under conditions of warmth and humidity that the viciousness of the dandruff germ is particularly noticeable.

AS IMPORTANT AS HER TOOTH BRUSH

"I find Newbro's Herpicide very beneficial for dandruff. I would no more think of going on a journey without a bottle of Herpicide than I would without my tooth powder. By using it often and thoroughly I find I do not require a shampoo as frequently and my hair is much nicer."

Middlebury, Vt. Mrs. S. J. Wilbur.

AN OPINION FROM THE WORLD'S GREATEST LADY RIFLE SHOT

[illegible]

The germ is always busy. There is no escape except in the use at regular intervals of Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide carries cure and certain death to this germ and is the one really reliable remedy.

An imitation or something just as good won't do. Insist on having genuine Herpicide.

The great new science of Chiropractic (not a new system) has shown the world that in order to be made well and to remain well it is necessary to remove the cause of the ailment and that treating symptoms with medicine is not as practical as the Chiropractic adjustment. # WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

WHEN you hear a criticism of yourself what is your first feeling? Resentment, probably. That's just nature—an impulse of mental self-protection as much instinctive as it is to raise your arm to shield your face from a blow or draw back your hand when you touch something hot.

But what's your second feeling? Tell me that and I will tell you how much of a man or woman you are. If your second impulse is to seek some motive for your critic's disparagement of you, such as his envy or his inability to understand you—well, you are not the man I hoped you were.

For I wanted you, as soon as the flash of resentment was over, to ask yourself, "Isn't that criticism just?"

"Am I not selfish?"
"Am I not too prone to talk about myself?"
"Am I not unappreciative?"
"Am I not inclined to sink if I don't get my way?"

And then I wanted you—so far as it is possible for a judge to sit on his own case—to answer that question honestly.

The man who regards criticism as an insult is the man who never gets anywhere in life.

The man whose monument the next generation is going to build is the man who looked on criticism as a foundation on which to rear a fair structure of character and accomplishment.

"He is a very brilliant and talented man," some one said to me of a friend the other day, "but he simply can't bear to be criticized."

And I thought to myself, "That divides the value of his brilliance and talents about in two."

In a city where I once lived is a store which employs several bright young women as critics. Their job is simply to find as much fault as they possibly can with the way the store is run. Signs, furthermore, are printed all over the store making salespeople and patrons to criticize any detail which they think might be improved upon.

Do I need to add that this shop is one of the most flourishing, progressive and most indubitably in the city? Hardly, I think.

The owners of a big factory not far from here paid out ten thousand dollars last year simply to have some experts whose sole business is criticizing other people's business, come and find fault with the way they were running things.

And as a corollary that factory is bringing in much more money today than ever before.

The successful business men, you see, are the men who not only permit but welcome and even pay large sums for criticism.

Is the development of your character of less importance than the building up of a business?

Is the conduct of your life less important than the management of a shop or factory?

Isn't a criticism as invaluable to you as to the business man?

Think it over.

POOR GIRL MARRIES INTO MACKAY MILLIONS.
Mrs. Marlon Victor McKay, nee Florence Mitchell

Doston, Mass.—The marriage of, given half their lives to win Victor Marlon Victor McKay, heir to the Gordon McKay millions, to the daughter of a poor Lawrence (Mass.) family marks the final victory of cupid over many obstacles. Young McKay and Miss Ida Florence Mitchell have known each other several years, but the one family was wealthy, held an international social position and the other neither possessed nor cared much for either. The beautiful Ida Mitchell was, however, sought out of the hundreds of girls who would have

Fads and Fashions

New York, Feb. 20.—Faster comes unusually early this year and it is probably due to that fact that the fashionable shops, regardless of the inclemency of the prevailing weather, are making large displays of spring and early summer styles. The models that have already come from Paris or that have been copied from French models or sketches by New York makers promise handsome things for the later season. The display includes a new lingerie and lace models for the Riviera season. They are in most cases extravagantly elaborate, as the modish lingerie frocks are apt to be nowadays.

Every importer is showing wonderful confections of this type, composed of lace, embroidered nets, silk mousseline, milks, batistes, lins and other summery materials. Often five or six different materials are combined in one frock. Then there are scores of filmy white frocks which, while following the general lines of the lingerie models, include no lingerie material at all.

Irish lace, which showed signs of waning vogue, comes boldly to the front again in connection with such frocks, but the Italian lace have an

NO WONDER SHE'S CROSS

The woman who has a thousand petty cares and annoyances while she suffers with headache or indigestion must not be blamed if she cannot always be angelically amiable. What she needs is thoughtfulness. From country and such a simple and natural remedy as Lane's Family Medicine, the herb tea that makes weak women strong and well. Sold by druggists and dealers, too.

than a large quantity of the imitation lace.

Linen frocks are among the most serviceable and attractive tub frocks. The range of colors and weaves this season is more beautiful than ever before. Most of these materials have a softness which gives them the semblance of the hand woven lins and makes them both more beautiful and more serviceable than the stiffer, shiner, surfaced lins of former years. Some of the new weaves have a decided luster like tussore. There are all kinds of diagonal weave lins, embroidered lins, bordered lins, striped lins, checked lins, dotted lins, corded lins, etc., but the most attractive of all is the soft, dull finished weave of hand-woven aspect, and in this one many charming colorings may be found.

The returns to the normal waistline is nowhere more clearly illustrated than in the new coats being brought forward by the leading makers of Paris and New York. Another commendable and striking feature of the current styles in tailored suits is the use of the belt, partially or entirely encircling the waist of the coat. By adding such a belt arrangement it is possible to bring up to date last year's tailor-made. The belt, however, must be of the straight, stiff variety calculated to make a straight line about the waist and should, therefore, be of leather or firm kid. It may be decorated, however, with handsome clasps. The belt is worn in various ways. Sometimes it goes about the waist precisely as the small boy confines the fullness of his flannel blouse, again it merely crosses the back of the coat, thus taking up the looseness at that point and allowing the front forms to fall straight from the shoulder; or the ends are woven through straps set upon the under-arm seams and then joined directly in front.

Special attention is devoted this season to the sleeve and neck finishings of tailor-made suits. While many of the mannish, turned-over, notched collars are joined at about the top of the bust, the tendency is to extend the opening toward the waist line, the better to exhibit the dainty blouse worn beneath the coat. This cut-out scheme necessarily entails for the deeply rolling collar which is a distinct feature of the best class of spring models and readily lends itself to the decorative scheme of relief. On the simpler suits the deep, rolling collar is of more or less of a tone matching or contrasting with that of the suit, while the more elaborately tailored costumes have their collars appliqued or embroidered with exquisite blendings of colors, sometimes mingled with gold, developed with heavy embroidery boss or with fine soutache.

The cuffs of this season's tailor-made suits also show new ideas in shape and treatment. Sometimes the wrist finishing is an extension of the under-arm form of the sleeve, an unique combination of the braid and satin trimmings of the jacket or more by a two-inch wide, perfectly fitting moire silk band cuff.

Platted skirts continue to survive the warfare regularly made upon them, and this season platts of almost any kind are modish, providing that the skirt of which they form a part is not too voluminous and hangs perfectly. Box platts, however, are decidedly in the lead, and that variety which is the spool of fashion, is loaned to the mode by using them alternately with narrow gores and with straight panels. It is reported from Paris that the "look VI" model, turned up at the back, is the favorite shape of hats just now. Velvet is called in to bewitching charm with straw, forming an upper surface of some, with a contrasting under brim. Old blue straw was effectively used in an imported model as a facing for a black velvet hat, the only ornament being a huge old-gold cabochon in which sapphires were set. These ornaments, by the way, are the favorite brilliant touch on many of the smartest styles.

Phases are demanding a prominent place as trimmings on some straw hats for afternoon wear, although flowers may be said to occupy first place. Roses veiled with tulle form the crowns of black straw hats that are being shown at some of the most fashionable modistes. Fancy laces and tulle, it is said, will be used much to drape crowns and brims of large hats for evening wear.

Some of the white leghorns which are being worn at southern resorts have their brims faced with black. Flowers for the new hats are charming when fashioned from tulle, braid and lace.

Some of the new hats have ombre-ered velvet crowns. Fringe is being used on many of the turbans of draped straw or silk. FLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

Because she is blind the mother of Dorothy Kirkham, a seven-year-old Blackpool (Eng.) girl, did not see the frock of her child catch fire while she was playing on the hearth one day recently, and because she is stone deaf she did not hear the screams which Dorothy and her twin sister raised. Despite heroic attempts by the twin sister to extinguish the flames herself, Dorothy was burnt to death.

SIMPLE AND EFFECTIVE.

Here is an attractive gown for a gown of pongee. The writer saw it made up in a lovely shade of violet. The collarless yoke in bodice was white net, braided in silk soutache, which matched the material. It is, of course, a one-piece dress, draped in front to form a girdle as shown. Bands of velvet a shade darker than braid outline the yoke, bodice and top of sleeves, and the covered buttons match this velvet. The skirt is plain at top with inset plaid panels on each side from knee down.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE

Janesville People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of stinging. The back aches constantly, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighed down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger of dropsy, bright's disease, or diabetes. Any one of these symptoms is warning enough to begin treating the kidneys at once. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Janesville proof:

Mrs. J. Gower, Eastern Ave., Janesville, Wis., says, "About four years ago I suffered from kidney trouble and felt quite miserable for several weeks. A friend who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with the best of results, advised me to try them and I procured a supply at the People's Drug Co. Less than the contents of three boxes freed me from the annoyance, and I have not had occasion to use a kidney remedy since. I know Doan's Kidney Pills are exactly as represented."

MACHINE FOR FILLING CANS

Weight Attachment Measures Out Accurately Amount Desired Deposited in Receptacles.

Pictured in the accompanying illustration is a machine which is adapted to fill cans or similar receptacles with material such as ground or whole coffee, breakfast cereals, and the like. The machine is provided with a weighing attachment, which will weigh accurately a predetermined amount and deposit this in packages with no waste of material, and without noise or dust, says Scientific American. The machine comprises a hopper A, provided at its lower ends with a circle of spouts B which are adapted to feed the material from the hopper into a set of pockets C. Below these pockets is a shelf on which a tray may be placed carrying the receiving cans or receptacles D. The lower end of each pocket is provided with a door E, which is normally kept in closed position by means of a spring F. A horizontal slide rod G connects with each door E and it may be operated whenever desired to open the doors and permit the material in the pockets to drop into the receptacles below. In order to prevent the material from choking the spouts B, an agitator is provided in the hopper A. This consists of a plate F to the lower side of which a series of curved blades J are affixed. The plate H is secured to a vertical shaft K, which by means of suitable gearing is driven by a pulley L. A clutch is provided by which the mechanism may be coupled to the pulley L and this clutch is operated by an arm M. The latter may be connected with any suitable weighing apparatus operated by the shaft which supports the cans. The plate H is of smaller diameter than the interior of the hopper, leaving an annular space through which the material that is to be fed into the cans may pass. As the agitator revolves, the blades J will scrape the material into the openings B. It will be observed from the upper sectional view that the spouts B are arranged in a circle, but their lower ends are bent inward so as to deliver the material into the pockets C which are arranged in parallel rows. From time to time as the pockets become filled with material the operator throws the lever G, which permits them to discharge into the receptacles D.

TO EXTINGUISH OIL FLAMES

New Method of Putting Out Fire Where Petroleum, Gasoline and Other Liquids Are Involved.

The attempt to extinguish fires by water where petroleum, gasoline, benzine or other liquid hydrocarbons lighter than water are involved usually results in the spreading of the inflammable liquid, an increase in the area of combustion and a greater intensity of conflagration. A new method of extinguishing such fires is now advocated, the means employed being a tenacious foam which clings to the burning liquids and cuts off the supply of air necessary to maintain combustion, thus extinguishing the flame.

The apparatus employed consists of a simple metal cylinder, provided with a long spout and divided into two chambers. One chamber is charged with an aqueous solution of potash, alum and sodium sulphate, the other with a similar solution of sodium bicarbonate, sodium sulphate and licorice root extract.

One successful test of the apparatus was the filling of an iron vessel 2 1/2 by 1 1/2 feet in size, and four in depth, with 18 gallons of benzine, the ground also being saturated. This was lighted and allowed to burn for three minutes. The contents of two foam extinguishers were then allowed to flow over the whole and combustion was promptly arrested. The layer of foam was removed, the benzine lighted again and an attempt was made to extinguish the flame with water from a two-inch hose. Instead of extinguishing the flame, the water increased the area of combustion.

A New Root Parasite.

A new parasite which attacks the vine at the root was discovered at the Academie des Sciences by M. Guignard, chief of the College of Pharmacy. It is designated "elandestine," as it is quite invisible in general, so that it is all the more dangerous. The parasite is believed to be a fungus of the phanerogam family. Experiments upon it are being continued at the biological laboratory of Nantes.

AN OLD FASHIONED WOMAN

Wife of Adolph O. Eberhart, Successor of Governor Johnson of Minnesota.

Would you hear a simple story of a faithful wife and devoted mother—an old fashioned love story, too—go to Mankato, Minn., a pleasant little town where customs are unchangeable and where there are neighbors who tell the good things about each other. The principal woman talked about up there just now is the wife of Governor Adolph O. Eberhart, who recently became chief executive of his state by reason of the death of Governor Johnson, whose honest face and way of living reminded people of Lincoln.

Adelle Koke was clerking in a general merchandise store when she met Adolph Olson. He had been a preacher and a schoolteacher. There were so many Olsons where he attended school that he had trouble in getting his mail. He talked it over with Adelle Koke, and she suggested that he take his mother's name; hence Adolph O. Eberhart. The sweetheart also suggested that as her beau had failed as preacher and teacher he should turn his attention to the law. Somewhere about that time there was a wedding.

MRS. ADOLPH O. EBERHART.

In the big church at Mankato, and the people of the town are still talking about it. The bride became the mother of five children, and their father is now governor of Minnesota.

Mrs. Eberhart is a slender, delicate looking woman with light hair. Anybody accustomed to traveling lineage can tell that she dates her people back to Germany. Her mother and sisters of her mother used to play with the children of German princes, but that fact never interfered with the simple nature of Adelle Koke. The Mankatoites do not care anything about the playmates of the mother of the quiet and pleasing woman who is now the mistress of the "white house" of Minnesota, as they call the governor's mansion out there. Everybody in Mankato speaks of Mrs. Eberhart as the "nice woman," and the people in New Ulm, sixty miles from Mankato, where Adelle Koke was born, are "sure" that the people at the state capital can't help liking Mrs. Eberhart.

When it became known that Papa Eberhart was to be governor he concluded to move the family from Mankato to the state capital. One of the incidents connected with this announcement was the marshaling of the five Eberharts of the household for the purchase of shoes and other articles for each. They were led to the store by their mother, who superintended the buying. This was typical of Mrs. Eberhart as a mother, for she takes personal charge of her household.

As all the children are young they come under the immediate supervision of their mother. She even makes most of their clothes. She dresses them in the simplest manner and attends to their education. This is what every mother should do. Yes, but—Mrs. Eberhart is thirty years old, and, while she is justly proud of her husband's success, being a modest home body, she shrinks from the publicity that has been turned upon her, although she is most gracious to the camera squad that has invaded her home to make pictures of her and her children and the home.

When her grandfather and grandmother were living at New Ulm in the early days they were warned by friendly Indians to escape. The family got away some time ago. For a few hours later the unfriendly Indians descended upon the village and committed many massacres in the vicinity. The mother of Mrs. Eberhart was one of the escaping family.

The new mistress of the governor's mansion in Minnesota is in no sense a society woman. But no woman of the state who was ever in public life in the state had more sincere friends than has Mrs. Eberhart. SUE SUBLETTE.

The Girl From the Effete East

By ARTHUR DENSMORE

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

BARRINGTON was completing his first year of practice when Theodore Tupperman arrived in Janesville. Mr. Tupperman was selling stock in the Charlotte Gold Mining company at 5 cents per share, price to advance to 10 cents at the end of thirty days. Incidentally he found that to foster in Barrington's bosom the spirit of discontent which ten months' fruitless waiting for clients had engendered. If he were a clever, clean-cut young man like Barrington, did Barrington know what he'd do? Move west. He wouldn't flatter away his time in a moonshaded New England hamlet where people looked down on a fellow just because they'd known him all his life and could remember when he was a little shaver and went with patches on his trousers. No, sir. He'd just gather together his earthly possessions and take the first train for Gilt Gulch, Nev. There was the coming town; there lay the opportunity for an able young man to rise. No reason in the world why he should not be in the United States south of within five years. That would be coming soon? Well, everybody and everything came soon in that country. Why, sir, where the thriving city of Gilt Gulch now stood there had been less than two years since naught but sagebrush and alkali. And now look at it—just look at it! Six thousand inhabitants and more coming by every train! Simply couldn't get houses up fast enough for 'em. Had to camp out in tents. And every blamed one of 'em making money. Why, sir, you couldn't find a bootblack in Gilt Gulch who was worth less than fifty thousand!

This vision of wealth and political prominence was quite too much for Barrington. He adjusted his affairs in Janesville, which was no very difficult matter, took careful leave of numerous relatives and of a certain pretty damsel, who was not yet a relative, but had rashly promised to become one whenever Barrington's income should suffice for the support of two persons, and bled himself to Gilt Gulch, promising to send souvenir postcards from every municipality he passed through on the way.

Now, underneath the lurid exaggeration with which Mr. Theodore Tupperman had clothed his narrative of the rise of Gilt Gulch there lay a respectable substratum of truth, and the combination of Barrington's ingenious appearance with certain letters of introduction to persons financially prominent in Gilt Gulch, which Mr. Tupperman procured for him, resulted in his speedily establishing a thriving practice. For the most part it was work in connection with the location of mining claims, and, besides numerous fees in cash, Barrington acquired several claims of his own, which he disposed of profitably.

In brief, at the end of a year Barrington had waxed so prosperous as to feel himself warranted in marrying. The Janesville Weekly Times announced editorially that it understood that young Mr. Barrington, for whom its readers would remember, the Times had predicted a brilliant career when he hung out his shingle in Janesville, was now one of the leading men in the west, and the other village maidens were openly jealous of Susie Cutler, whose good fortune it was to be married to a millionaire.

But Susie herself had no illusions. She even refused to permit Barrington to come east for the marriage. Her childhood lessons of thrift and economy had taken deep root in her mind, and she would not, she said, have the price of a round trip railroad ticket thrown away. If Barrington felt that he must spend the money, let him buy a cadillac or a second-hand plan for the front parlor. They would be married in their own house at Gilt Gulch and after that take a little wedding trip to Colorado Springs or maybe Denver. Perhaps, being a prudent damsel, Susie desired to have a glance at Gilt Gulch before she committed herself irrevocably. At any rate, matters had been thus arranged, and the date set for the wedding being but two days away and Susie due to arrive that afternoon, Barrington was in the state of ecstasy appropriate to such circumstances. It was in this moment of supreme happiness that unfortunate befell him.

The work Barrington had been doing requires to be performed with great accuracy; otherwise it is not only valueless, but may be the occasion of great loss to the client. Now, it is possible that Barrington possessed genius. People who have that, you know, are apt to be careless as to details. Perhaps it was merely that, being deeply in love, he could not concentrate his mind upon his work. However that may be, Hartford, the attorney whose office was next to Barrington's, had discovered in the course of an investigation of the records that Barrington had filed documents containing serious errors. He spoke to Barrington about it in a perfectly friendly way. Barrington received his kindly admonitions with a contempt which he was at no pains to disguise. Why should he pay heed to the remarks of a man who wore baggy trousers and long hair and played faro, to say nothing of becoming intoxicated now and then? He knew well enough what inspired these critical observations. Hartford was jealous of the prosperity which Barrington had so rapidly achieved. Let him stop caviling, said the virtuous Barrington to himself, and seek success by leading a sober life, as he did.

Feeling that he had been insulted, Barrington thereafter confined his communications with Hartford to a curt "How are you?" accompanied by a barely perceptible nod when they chanced to meet. It was with a good deal of surprise, therefore, that Hartford, glancing up from his rather dilapidated desk as he heard the door open, perceived Barrington entering his office. One had not to look at Barrington twice to be convinced that he was badly frightened. His eyes, which ordinarily regarded those about him with an air of easy toleration, were wide with terror, and his well-chiseled features, customarily wearing an air of placid content, were now white and drawn. His manner toward Hartford was no longer supercilious. All his carefully constructed attitude of dignity had vanished.

"You've been in this part of the country longer than I have, Hartford," said he. "I want your advice as a friend, you know."

Hartford nodded, and withdrew his pipe from his lips.

"Sure," said he succinctly. "What's the row?"

"Why, you see," said Barrington, "it seems that in filing the papers for Jim Busby on that last mining claim of his I made a slight error. I have been doing a large business, you know, Hartford—a very large business—and it was inevitable that I should make a mistake occasionally. It seems that some unscrupulous persons have taken advantage of this purely technical slip and have jumped Busby's claim, and he is very much exercised about it."

"I should think he might be," Hartford observed.

"Yes," repeated Barrington, "he is much exercised and quite unreasonable about it. He came into my office a few moments ago and demanded an explanation. Of course I couldn't tell him anything except that it was just a mistake such as any man might make, and he said I was lying to him. He said I was too smart to make a fool break like that and that I was in with the gang that were trying to do him out of a claim that would have made him rich. I argued with him the best I could, but it didn't budge him. He said he didn't see that it made much difference, anyhow, whether I was a fool or a knave, because either way I hadn't any right to live, and he would up by saying that he'd just go down to the Jolly Dog and get a few drinks to put him in the right frame of mind and then he'd come back and reduce the membership of the Gilt Gulch bar by one."

It is significant of Hartford's broad and tolerant temperament that he did not remind Barrington that he had previously predicted such a catastrophe as had now befallen. Nevertheless a slight glimmer of amusement stole across his face.

"No you want my advice, do you?" he asked.

"I should appreciate it very much," said Barrington.

"Well, you shall have it," said Hartford ineffectually, rapping the bowl of his pipe against the heel of his shoe. "If Jim Busby were out gambling for me and I couldn't shoot any better than you can, and I had a comfortable little sum saved, as you have, and there were a pretty girl in New England who didn't know any better than to love me, as she does you, I'd go east on the half past 2 train, and I wouldn't hurry back."

"But the trouble is," Barrington explained, "Susie—Miss Cutler, that is—will be here on the train that gets in at 2:30. The trains pass on the first siding out, you know. The fact is we are to be married day after tomorrow at noon. You'll pardon my omitting to send you an invitation, won't you? It was quite unintentional. I've been so busy!"

"Oh," Hartford broke in, with a deprecating wave of his arm, "you need not apologize. It's just one of those little mistakes a busy man is bound to make every now and then. I haven't Busby's disposition. I'll forget you."

Then Hartford looked at his watch and found that it was twenty minutes past 2.

"You'll have to move lively, my boy," he said. "Keep an eye open for Jim, and if the coast is clear take the 2:30. If it isn't, walk over to Sand City and take the next one there."

"But about Susie," Barrington remonstrated.

"Sislaw!" growled Hartford. "That's easy enough. Leave a note for her with the station master, telling her to go back to Colorado Springs and you'll meet her there. If you don't have time to write a note, have the station master tell her you've been called away on a life and death matter and that she's to go to the hotel and wait until you send her word. Don't you worry about the girl. She'll prefer a slightly delayed wedding to an expedited funeral. Hurry up now. You're just about time to make it."

As he slipped down the main street of Gilt Gulch on his way to the station Barrington caught a glimpse of Jim Busby's gaunt profile as he stood at the bar of the Jolly Dog, his back toward the entrance. Barrington's indolent heart rejoiced as he reflected that the ten mile walk to Sand City would now be unnecessary. It was just twenty-eight minutes past 2 when he reached the station. He gave the necessary instructions regarding Susie to the station master and rushed out upon the platform. But the train which made up at Gilt Gulch was not yet ready to depart. A freight car had left the rails, blocking the track. Five, ten, fifteen minutes passed, and still the obstruction remained. Barrington gray midway. Jim Busby might at any moment deem that he had lunched a quantity of liquor commensurate with his contemplated task and begin to search for him. But at the end of twenty minutes, to his great relief, the perplexing train crew succeeded in replacing the derailed car, and the freight train pulled slowly out upon a siding. Even as it did so Barrington caught sight of the 2:30 train as it rounded the curve just beyond the station.

A moment later, Susie Cutler, her trim little figure set off by a skillfully tailored gray traveling suit and her face wearing the look of determination befitting a girl who had just completed a journey nearly across the continent alone, descended to the platform of Gilt Gulch station. Barrington rushed toward her joyfully. Within three steps of her he encountered an obstacle—a very serious obstacle. This was nothing less than the muzzle of a revolver. Behind the revolver stood Mr. James Busby.

"Now, young man," said Mr. Busby, "we'll attend to your little matter, and we won't be long doing it."

Then Busby became suddenly conscious of a voice, evidently feminine, proceeding from some point in his rear and of the light pressure of a hand upon his arm.

"Do you know," said the voice, "it's dreadfully careless of you pointing that thing at anybody so. Why, it might go off."

Turning about, Busby looked into the placid features of Susie Cutler. He decided unhesitatingly that, notwithstanding some freebies and the tendency of the nose to turn up, it was a rather pleasing face to view.

"So it might," said Busby slowly. "So it might," said Busby slowly.

"Well, then, stop aiming it at Mr. Mr. Barrington," she commanded.

"You make me nervous," said Busby.

"Fact is," said Busby, "I was sort of planning to shoot Mr. Barrington."

He had lowered his weapon and spoke very calmly and deliberately.

"What?" shrieked the girl. "You have the audacity to stand there and tell me you mean to commit a cold blooded murder? Where are the police? A splendid place this must be to live in, where a man goes out to kill another as easily as he'd eat his breakfast!"

"That's the way with all you folks from out Boston way," grumbled Busby. "You're always grumbling murder and the administration of justice mixed. I ain't going to murder him. I'm going to execute him. He's done me dirt, and if he ain't killed he'll do somebody else dirt. So for the good of everybody he'd ought to be shot. What do you care anyway? Ain't no relative of yours, is he?"

"Why, no," she answered in some confusion, "he isn't a relative exactly—that is, he's—"

A gleam of comprehension shone in Busby's eyes.

"Come to think of it," said he, "I heard something about his being going to get married. Be you the girl?"

She nodded.

"You," she answered simply, "I'm the girl."

"Then," said Busby, "it's clear enough to my mind that in interfering with this execution you're preventing me from doing you a great favor. Howsoever, if you stick to it that you don't want him shot and if you'll take him out of Nevada and keep him out—"

The girl did not wait for him to finish. She transferred her grasp from Busby's arm to that of Barrington, who during the preceding conversation had stood silent, his face white, his limbs trembling, cold sweat beading his forehead.

"Come, Harry," she said imperiously. "Quickly, with bowed head and downcast eyes, Barrington suffered her to lead him aboard the train, which was now, the track being clear, about to move eastward."

Jim Busby sat down upon the edge of the platform and burst into a roar of laughter. Long after the train had disappeared around the curve below the station the station master found him there, his broad shoulders still shaking with merriment.

"Well, you daddling idiot," said the station master, "what's the joke?"

"Oh, ain't he going to get his all right, though?" queried the mischievous Busby. "Did you hear he 'Come, Harry,' him and spoke him aboard the train like he'd been a puppy hitched to a string? He got out of being executed, but he's getting a life sentence, and that's a whole lot worse."

Senatorial Reparto.

Once in the senate chamber John J. Ingalls was directing some remarks to Senator Hoar of Massachusetts. The other senator from that state, Mr. Dawes, having come in while Mr. Ingalls was speaking, thought the words were meant for his ear, and so, interrupting, he asked Ingalls if he was directing the remarks at him. (The Kansas senator turned slowly around, for Mr. Dawes sat behind him, and then, with a delicious intonation, but an insistent wit, he said, "I was directing my remarks to the successor of Charles Sumner and not to the successor of Daniel Webster.")

The reporter has become traditional, and the utterance was at once placed alongside of that reply of Conkling to Senator Thurman, which is also traditional in the senate chamber.

Conkling was speaking, and Thurman had said, interrupting him, "Does the senator aim his remarks at me; he constantly turns to me?" when Mr. Conkling, with delicious gravity, bowing to Thurman, with whom he was very friendly, said: "When I turn to the senator I turn as the Mussolini turns to Mecca; I turn as I would turn to the common law of England—the world's most copious fount of jurisprudence."

Some Common Sense Facts and Life Insurance

Some people save money because they think of those terrible things that may happen when they get old. Saving is all right, provided you KNOW in advance that you will live long enough to make the saving worth the stinting. But there is a safer, surer way to save than to put your money in a bank. Take out a 20-year endowment policy in the Actina Life Insurance Company. Not only are you insured against a calamity, but you won't spend your money every time you see a "sure thing." Insure yourself and be assured. Don't run the risk of leaving your wife and children without support. Take out a 20-year endowment policy and put your money in an insurance company instead of a bank. All you get from a bank is small interest. Our insurance policy gives you much more. It will mean protection during the life of the policy and at the end of the 20 years you will get $1,000.00, together with your share of the earnings of the company.

If the policy is in force, one year, it is incontestable EXCEPT FOR NON-PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS.

You will share in the earnings of the company, which earnings will be applied on the premiums, or they can be made to hasten the maturity of the contract.

You can borrow money of this policy as per Table "A." At the end of second year $25.00, third year $41, etc. You can apply the loan as payment of premium.

If two or more years full premiums have been paid and there is no indebtedness on account of loans, the policy will be extended as temporary insurance for the full sum insured, including dividend additions, for the length of time shown in the table "A" under the column "Extended Insurance."

At the end of the 20 years the company will also pay to the holder the amount of the "Pure Endowment."

Suppose you paid four years and then stopped; you would receive 10 years of $1000 insurance and $12 in cash at the end of that time; at 5 years you get 15 years' insurance and $35 cash, etc.

If the policy should lapse for non-payment of premiums, it can be re-instated at any time within five years by paying the amount due with interest. If satisfactory evidence of insurability is furnished to the company.

Suppose you become totally disabled from sickness or accident, or become blind, or if you lose both hands or both feet or one hand or one foot, then your premiums on this policy stop and the company pays you one-twentieth of the policy each year until the full sum of the policy has been paid.

Suppose you saved your money in a bank—you would get 3 to 5 per cent interest. If you put your money into this policy you share in the earnings of the company which last year on one of these 20-year endowment policies held by a Janesville resident amounted to over 15 per cent.

NO MAN CAN AFFORD TO BE WITHOUT INSURANCE

Think of the benefit it would be to wife and family or mother, if you should be called by death. Think of the great amount you would get all in one sum at the expiration of the policy, and then consider that it really costs you nothing except the interest on the money you would be saving. Read over the above carefully, see how you can borrow money on the policy, how it will carry itself, how you can be reinstated within five years if you should lapse.

INSURE YOUR WIFE

and make the $1000.00 payable to your child, you will be saving just that much money and all during the twenty years your wife is insured. Every rich man is insured heavily, every poor man needs it even more.

Many men are insured, but their wives are not, yet no man would insure one-half of his house and not the other. Insurance is as necessary on the mother of a family as on the father. ....

Now is the best time to consider this matter. Every day, every month you put it off you are getting older—your rate is getting higher and no one knows when it will be too late.

Life insurance is a privilege. If it is within your reach today, secure it today—tomorrow may be too late. We write the best policy in the world and with one of the strongest old line companies.

If you take out a policy with us you deal with an agency that has been established 36 years, an agency that has looked to the interest of its clients in a most thorough manner. During these 36 years of experience we have found that our companies are of the best in the world, and that it is wise to deal with a permanent established agency. Take out a policy with us and it will mature with us. Don't deal with an agent who is here today and gone tomorrow.

Write us to send you a sample policy so that you can read it over carefully, or if you prefer, we will call and explain the policy to you. Fill out the coupon right now.

"He's a contemptible hound," replied Griswold with feeling, "and at the proper time we shall deal with him; but it is of more importance just now to make Applegate a prisoner in North Carolina. If he's arrested over there, that lets us out; and if the North Carolina authorities won't arrest their own criminals we'll go over to Dilwell county and show them how to be good. The man's got to be locked up, and he'd look much better in a North Carolina jail, under all the circumstances."

"That's good in theory, but how do you justify it in law?"

"Oh, that's the nearest matter of formulae! My dear Habersham, all the usual processes of law go down before emergencies!"

The address of Griswold's tone caused the prosecutor to laugh, for this was not the sober associate professor of adroitness whose lectures he had sat under at the University of Virginia, but a different person, whose new attitude toward the law and its enforcement shocked him immeasurably.

"Well, as I told you over the telephone, we hear a great deal about Applegate and his crowd, but we never hear much of their enemies, who are, nevertheless, of the same general stock, and equally determined when aroused. Ten of these men I have quietly called to meet at my farm out here a few miles from town on Thursday night. They come from different points over the country, and we'll have a small but grim posse that will be ready for business. You may not know it, but the Applegates are most religious. Applegate himself boasts that he never misses church on Sunday. He goes also to the mid-week service on Thursday night, so I have learned, and thereby hangs our opportunity. Mount Nebo church lies off here toward the north. It's a lonely point in itself, though it's the spiritual center and rendezvous for a wide area. If Applegate can be lured to that place, and I'm willing to make the trial. Whether to stampede the church and make a fight, or seize him alone as he approaches the place, is a question for discussion with the boys I have engaged to go into the game. How does it strike you?"

"First rate. Ten good men ought to be enough; but if it comes down to numbers, the state militia can be brought into use. The South Carolina National Guard is in camp, and we can have a regiment quick enough, if I ask it."

Habersham whistled.

CHAPTER XI.

Two Ladies on a Balcony.

The outer aspect of Ardmore is, frankly, feudal. The idea of a North Carolina estate had grown out of Ardmore's love of privacy and his wish to get away from New York where his family was all too frequently struck by the spot light. The great tract of land, once secured, he had not concerned himself about a house, but had thrown together a comfortable bungalow which satisfied him for a year. But Ardmore's gentle heart, inaccessible to demands of many sorts, was a defenseless citadel when appeals were made to his generosity. A poor young architect, lately home from the Ecole des Beaux Arts, with many honors but few friends, fell under Ardmore's eyes. The towers and battlements that soon thereafter crowned the terraced slopes at Ardley, etching a noble line against the lovely panorama of North Carolina hills, testified at once to the architect's talent for adaptation and Ardmore's diminished balance at the Bronx Loan and Trust Company.

On a balcony that commanded the sunset—a balcony bright with geraniums that hung daintily over a ravine on the west, Mrs. Atchison and Miss Jerry Dangerfield were early taking their tea. Their white gowns, the snowy awning stirring slightly in the hill air, the bright tresses of the tea-table mingled in a picture of charm and contentment.

"I wonder," said Mrs. Atchison abruptly, "where Tommy is."

"I have no definite idea," said Jerry, pouring cream, "but let us hope that he is earning his salary."

"His salary?" and Mrs. Atchison's brows contracted. "Do you mean that my brother is taking pay for this mysterious work he is doing?"

"He shall be paid in money," replied Jerry with decision. "As I have only the barest acquaintance with Mr. Ardmore, never, in fact, having seen him until a few days ago, it would be very improper for me to permit him to serve me except under the rules that govern the relations of employer and employee."

Mrs. Atchison smiled with the wise tolerance of a woman of the world; and she was a lady, it must be said, who had a keen perception of that same and ample philosophy of life which proceeds, we may say, for the sake of convenience, from the sense of humor. She did not like to be puzzled; and she had never in her life been surprised, least of all by any word or deed of her singular brother Tommy. She liked and even cultivated with daring the inadvertent turns in a day's affairs. The cool fashion in which her brother had placed the daughter of the governor of North Carolina in her hands on board her car at Raleigh had amused her. She had learned nothing from Jerry of the beginnings of that young woman's acquaintance with the master of Ardley—an acquaintance which seemed to be intimate in certain respects but amazingly distant and opaque in others. Mrs. Geraldine Dangerfield, like Mrs. Atchison herself, was difficult to surprise, and Tommy Ardmore's sister admired this in any one and she

"I hope," said Mrs. Atchison, putting down her cup and gazing dreamily into the west, "that you have not given Tommy any commission in which he is likely to fail."

This was, as the lady knew, almost vulgarly leading; but Jerry folded her arms, and spoke out with charming frankness.

"I have heard my father say," said Jerry, "that incapable men often rise to great opportunities when they are pushed. Mr. Ardmore has undertaken to perform for me a service of the greatest delicacy and not unattended with danger. You have been kind to me, Mrs. Atchison, and as you are my chaperone it is right for you to know just how I came here, and why your brother is absent in my service."

For once curiosity bound Mrs. Atchison in chains of steel.

"Tell me nothing, dear, unless you are quite free to do so," she murmured; but her heart skipped a beat as she waited.

"I should not think of doing so except of my own free will," declared Jerry, carefully following the flight of a hawk that flapped close by toward the neighboring woods. ## BEDRIDDEN WITH ECZEMA SIX WEEKS

Itching, Burning Eruption from Head to Foot—Doctor Gave Her Up Entirely—First Application of Cuticura Brought Relief and Sleep.

CUTICURA REMEDIES EFFECT PERFECT CURE

"Four years ago I suffered severely with a terrible eczema, being a mass of sores from head to foot, and for six weeks confined to my bed. During that time I suffered continual torture from itching and burning. After being given up by my doctor I was advised to try the Cuticura Remedies. After the first bath with Cuticura Soap and application of Cuticura Ointment I enjoyed the first good sleep during my entire illness. I also used Cuticura Resolvent, and the treatment was continued for about three weeks. At the end of that time I was able to be about the house, entirely cured, and have felt no ill effects since. I would advise any person suffering from any form of skin trouble to try the Cuticura Remedies as I know what they did for me. Mrs. Edward Neimyer, 1112 Salina St., Watertown, N. Y., April 11, 1909."

Cuticura Soap
Soothing, Cooling, Refreshing for Tender Skins.

Because of its delicate, emollient, soothing, antipruritic properties derived from Cuticura, united with the purest of saponaceous ingredients and most refreshing of flower odors, Cuticura Soap is unrivaled for cleansing, preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands, for dispelling itching, irritation and inflammation and preventing clogging of the pores, the cause of many disagreeing facial eruptions. All who delight in a clear skin, soft, white hands, a clean, wholesome scalp and lustrous hair, will find that Cuticura Soap realizes every expectation.

He does not exactly know it, for at Raleigh I myself was governor of North Carolina at the time we met and I only flatter Mrs. Ardmore my private secretary; but when it became necessary to take the field I placed him in full charge, and he is now not only governor of the Old North State, but also the commander-in-chief of her troops in the field."

Mrs. Atchison moved forward slightly, but evinced no other sign of surprise. The hour, the scene, the girl were all to her liking. She would even prolong the delight of hearing the further history of her brother's amazing elevation to supreme power in an American commonwealth—it was so foreign to all experience, so heavy with possibilities, so delicious in that it had happened to Tommy of all men in the world!

"I trust," she said, smiling a little, "that Tommy will not prove unworthy of the confidence you have reposed in him."

"If he does," said Jerry, slapping her hands together to free them of an imaginary sugar crumb, "I shall never, never marry him."

"I love you more and more! You may tell me anything you like without fear of being misunderstood; but tell me nothing that you prefer to keep to yourself."

"If you were not Mr. Ardmore's sister I should not tell you this; and I shall never tell another soul. I was coming home from a visit in Baltimore and the train stopped somewhere to let another train pass. The two trains stood side by side for a little while and in the window of the sleeper opposite me I saw a young man who seemed very sad. So, just as my train started, at the very last moment that we looked at each other, I winked at that gentleman with, I think, my right eye."

Mrs. Geraldine Dangerfield touched the offending member delicately with her handkerchief.

Mrs. Atchison bent forward and took both the girl's hands.

"And that was Tommy—my brother Tommy?"

LAXATIVE BISCUIT.

A laxative biscuit, especially valuable in severe constipation, is made from four parts of bran, pulverized, and one part boiled rice, sweetened with maple sugar. As bran contains the mineral elements of food, in form easily assimilated, this biscuit (from two to six) is valuable in anemia, convalescence from typhoid, and general malnutrition. The bran should be clean, and it may be heated in an oven to 150 degrees Fahrenheit, but its nutritive qualities are largely destroyed by baking at high temperature.
